THE CENTENNIAL ADMISSION FEE

The price of admission to the Exhibition in Philadelphia will be fifty cents, payable in one note. The receivers at the recording turn stiles will have nothing to do with the notes except to decide whether they are good or bad, and to drop them in the boxes, where each one will register itself An exchange office of the Centennial National Bank will be established near the entrance, to change money for visitors not having fifty cent notes. This money changer will be expected to have no more and no less money when his work is done than when he began The Centennial Commission, after much inquiry and careful consideration, concluded that the whole system-absence of season tickets and all-was cheaper and more secure against fraud than any other known. In order that the cash in the boxes may correspond with the indicators, a dollar note will not be received at any gate for the admission of two persons, nor two twenty five cent notes for that of one person No intelligent visitor, however, with the facilities afforded, need get into the "cue"an arrangement to keep in single file hose about to enter-unprovided with the required note. In the event of a resumption of specie payments prior to or during the Exhibition, the rule will be amonded to meet demands.

Fanny Kemble relates in the Atlan tic a strange experience. She says that the has often looked up casually from a book into a mirror, and failed to recognize for a moment the image of herself "Under a currous i scination, ' she says, my countenance has altered, becoming gradually so dreadful, so much more dreadul in expression than any human face I ever saw or could describe, while it was next to impossible for me to turn my eyes away from the hideous vision confronting me, that I have felt for more than once that unless by the strongest effort of will I immediately averted my head, I should certainly become insane Of course I was myself party to this stringe freeinstion of error, and must no doubt have exer oised some power of volition in the assumption of the expression that my face gradually presented

The excessively short waists were disagreeable and painful to wear, as the knew the diamonds and rich dress belt passed across the swell of the bosom, confining it unpleasantly. A dress in thoso days measured two yards and a half at the bottom of the skirt, and was gored upward until the little fulness that remained was gathered in by a draw string at the neck.

Winter and summer dresses were al ways cut with low or at most half-high necks. Beneath them was worn only one scant white petticoat; even in win ter flannel skirts were avoided by the fashionables. No starch was put into either dress or petticoat, and some ladies, in order to make the material cling the better to the form, one would think already sufficiently revealed, actually had their drosses dampened, as the last finishing touch, before starting for a

Every pains was taken to show the lovely proportions of the women in those days, and the revolations of the "pull-back" are nothing to the lavish display of that period.

The longth of the skirt was just to the ankle bone, and silk stockings and monoy enough to satisfy the groenback alippors were the only covering for the Democrats of the West. The Belkurp investigating committee is to summon Mrs. Belkuap, Of course the law will not allow her to testify against her husband, but under the new law which the Democrats have forced through the House the fact of bringing stituted his complete vindication-beher before the committee will protect her from any further exposure or proses eution. So Clymer knew, before Mrs. Marsh left Washington, that she was ready to swear to Mrs. Belknap's confession that she received a large sum of money from Pendleton for securing that railroad claim, and yet Clymer aided Mrs. Marsh's departure without taking her cestimony .-- Toledo Blade.

I knew a man and woman, who on an income of twenty-five hundred dollars, lived at the rate at least of five thousand. The woman was naturally ing pay for his services. He denied, domestic, would have been content with however, that he had ever paid money a very small house, if she had been to any member of Congress except in permitted to live in it with her husband one instance, and that was to A. II. and make it their home. But, no; he considered it necessary that they should Coffroth, a Democratic member of the fashionable street, and reasoned that Proposed Removal of an Interlive in a stylish boarding house on a this gave them the eclat of living with elegance, without incurring the obligations of showing hospitality, as no one expects anything from people who clubs; she went out but rarely, and when she did, felt like a fraud, for she which her husband insisted upon her wearing, were not the fruit of honest living or working. Fifteen years of this life put her in a mad-house, from which she was transferred to her grave, her husband mourning her with a great show of affection, and having a dozen empty carriages to attend the funeral. A man who allows his wife to ruin him proclaims himself either a weak fool or a weak knave.-Jennie June.

> CYRUS H. McCormick, as represented by the Chicago Courier, must be a queerly made up genius. That paper says that the great problem now is to find some man for the Democratic candidate for Vice President on the ticket with Tilden, who can harmonize the hard money Democrats of the East, the soft money Democrats of the West and the fire eaters of the South, and it proposes Cyrus II. McCormick as the man. Cyrus was sufficiently strong in his sympathics with the rebels, to sasisfy the rebel Democracy of the South, hard that Cyrus is subject to flattery, and is in the habit of coming down with the "ducate" when patted on the back.

How elosely Mr. Pondleton grazed the outermost verge of the truth in giving his testimony—the which confore the Clymer committee is apparent from the facts which he did not disclose. He swere he paid no money to person connected with the government He didn't, for the present Mrs. Belknap was not then a member of the Belknap family, her marriage having taken place seen, all literally true that Gentleman cooled in getting a long way from the

Rubber Bucket Chain Pump

The advantages of this Pump over many others are many. The Chain being button less, it is much lighter, consequently it is not liable to break, and works much easier. The RUBBER BUCKETS which are attached to the Chain will not wear the Tubing, consequently it will last longer than when Metal Buttons are used. It is, positively. ANTI-FREEZING. It is apositive WATER PURIFIER, as each Bucket is const ucted with an AIR CHAMBER, which carries a given quantity of pure air into the water, which immediately diffuses through the entire body of water, purifying and cleaning, and rendering it fit for use.
